Have you ever watched a child read their very first book? There's hesitation at first, and sometimes fear. There's a struggle as the child transforms familiar letters into new words—the miracle of reading. The pages turn and a child reads his or her first book. A triumph! Once they've read one, they're on the road to reading thousands.

This year, we're focusing on helping kids begin their reading journeys. We're publishing tons of Guided Reading Level A and B books to give kids fun options at this very first level of reading development. I think you'll love meeting Kat and Cody, two silly characters from Brenda Ponnay. Our new nonfiction also starts with beginning readers, offering simple texts featuring the alphabet, colors, numbers and shapes.

We love it when kids delight in opening a new book and looking at the world in a new way. Whether it is a toddler's first Easter egg hunt, or a journey through ancient Ireland, we hope your children discover a wonderful and exciting world through our books.

Keep Reading,

Sample Text:

Aye, there! My name is Peg Patrick, but I'm standing here in front of a statue of the real Saint Patrick. Saint Patrick lived over 1,500 years ago and his life was one big journey. I traveled in his footsteps and I'll tell you his story...

When Patrick first came to Ireland, he didn't look like much. Like the other teenage slaves stolen from their families, he was dirty and frightened.

Geolocation map included so readers can follow St. Patrick on his journey

The terms "turtle" and "tortoise" are used interchangeably depending on where you live in the world. Turtles have been around for more than 200 million years. They live in warm and mild waters and climates on every continent except Antarctica. Turtles can live up to 150 years.

Turtles range in size from the smallest speckled tortoise which is less than 4 inches long to the largest leatherback sea turtle which weighs 1,500 pounds. There are about 300 species of turtles living today.

The pregnant sea turtle will return to the same nesting ground she was born in to lay 50-200 eggs, depending on the species. After 50-60 days, it's time for the eggs to hatch. Baby turtles use their "egg-tooth" to break out of their egg's shell and dig through the sand and out of their nest.

Once they are out, they are able to survive on their own. Baby sea turtles instinctively go into the sea shortly after birth.

Mrs. Kinder's mysterious golden book tells an intertwined tale of two young men—a sensitive sculptor who carves a beautiful woman from ice, and a thieving sorcerer searching for a spell that will bring the statue to life.
